

For my research paper I researched teen drivers and why they are so bad at driving.

I chose this subject...

The first thing...

Teen drivers are the cause for about 8% of all fatal car accidents, yet they only make up about 5% of all licensed drivers...

First of which...

The second thing that...

Including a part of the brain...

Things like planning, and long term consequences...

Aren't that good at planning...

Another part of the brain called the limbic system...

Deals with rewards and emotions...

Which can make risks...

One part of a teens brain...

Another part of the brain...

Imbalance in teen brains...

Dumb things...

One thing that makes...

Oh and I forgot to say...

Reasons we should...

What kind of drivers...

death rate per 100,000 people...

Is 28% higher than the national rate...

What kind of drivers...

Less people die...
